'Away-Day Learning'

Getting the best from day visits and residentials

Monday 30th September, 9.15am - 3.00pm, Bradgate Park Visitor Centre

Learning Adventures - Our principles

Our aim is to enable children to become the proactive, informed and fulfilled citizens of tomorrow, as well as teaching them to become readers, writers, mathematicians, scientists, artists, and designers.

We believe that engagement is key to successful learning, using different environments, settings and strategies to hook children into learning, to enhance their enjoyment and understanding and to provide opportunities to use and apply knowledge and skills learned in the classroom.

These principles are at the core of all we offer on our Learning Adventures

During the day we will explore:

- The principles and potential benefits of outdoor learning
- The benefits of taking risks
- From planning events to safe return
- Practical suggestions and ideas for meaningful and enjoyable days out
- The importance and benefits of the residential experience
- Roles, responsibilities and managing groups outdoors
- A whole afternoon of practical activities

Session Leader

Simon Perkins has 32 years of experience teaching, the last ten as a teaching Head.

“We believe that in order to nudge learning forward learners must take risks. Being able to recognise, manage and feel comfortable with taking a risk is a vital part of the learning process. It is by risking our comfort that we achieve and grow and learn.”
