'Taking it Outdoors'

Wednesday 3rd October, 9.15am - 3.00pm, Holmsdale Manor Nursery Forest

Join us for a day to consider the importance of Outdoor Learning as part of the curriculum, its' potential impact upon learning and character development and upon children's well-being.

Come prepared to be learning outdoors, to be open to the possibility of sometimes working in a different way and to take some risks.

Outdoor clothing, footwear and a picnic lunch are essential.

Through presentation, discussion and practical activities we will cover the following areas:

- Establishing the case for learning outdoors as part of the curriculum
- Preparing our children to succeed in an uncertain future
- Enjoyment Engagement and Purpose
- Risk Taking
- Getting the most out of day visits and residential experiences
- Meaningful links to learning and to the curriculum and
- Making the most of unplanned opportunities for learning

We will also share and model practical examples of quality outdoor learning in our Forest School area.

Information about Learning Adventures

Our purpose is to help children to develop values and learning dispositions that will allow them to become the proactive, successful and fulfilled citizens of tomorrow.

We believe that engagement is key to successful learning, using different environments, settings and strategies to hook children into learning, to enhance their enjoyment and understanding and to provide opportunities to use and apply knowledge and skills learned in the classroom.

These principles are at the core of all we offer on our Learning Adventures
