

The Art of Brilliant Lunchtime Supervision

Thursday 11th October 2018, 8:30am – 11:30am, Ashmount School, Loughborough

Without a doubt, if lunchtime doesn't go well, the afternoon's learning isn't so good either. Those who supervise and manage different areas of schools during breaks and lunchtimes have a hugely important job that contributes to the outcomes for pupils and students. In this workshop we'll look at a wide range of techniques and strategies that staff can use to help these times run smoothly.

Who should attend?

Primary and Secondary Lunchtime supervisors.

Course content

- Understanding how to manage a queue
- Understanding how to move students from a to b
- Using the 'duty' to network and establish a positive but authoritative relationship
- Develop positive but assertive body language
- Handling difficult situations and rudeness
- Developing a sixth sense to spot bullying and safeguarding issues
- How to make the right call; choosing when to intervene and when to reassure
- Defusing conflict
- And dealing with a few myths...

About the course leaders

Former teachers and school leaders, Gary Toward and Chris Henley always receive rave reviews from delegates and head teachers alike:

Past Feedback

"Delivered with great humour and insight. I feel so much more confident and in control."

"I tried the techniques for queue management...and they work!"

Ways to book

Click here to book a place

or

Email: jessevens@ashmount.leics.sch.uk

or

Tel: 01509 632911

£60 (members)
£85 (non-members)